ed, have extemporized numerous articles. Two bolts of calico, obtained from the pack of one of the mules in a Villa pack train, captured at Guerrero, has been used by the soldiers, the truckman said, to fashion almost everything from hats to saddle bags.

Look Like Mexicans.
"When I first saw some of these fellows of the Seventh coming toward me, I thought we were in the center of a Mexican camp," said one man. "They wore the same mixed collection of clothing that is noticeable in a Mexican army camp where each man chooses his own uniform. Some of the men wore the broad brimmed Mexican sombrero, their own hats having been lost, others were clad in the loose jacket of the Mexican laborer. If it hadn't been for the American equipment and the bits of slang coming through the alkali caked lips, I doubt if I should have recognized our boys for only a few were clad in the same uniform in which they left the United States. The cowhide sandals and the calico, much of which had been used for the manufacture of saddle bags, the original saddle bags having gone to replace worn out shoe soles, added a touch which some way made me think of the desert horsemen of Egypt."

Morale Is Excellent.

The morale of the troops was described as being excellent, even those men whose haggard faces betrayed the weariness that had settled in their bones as a result of the grueling days and cold mountain nights, were said to have a light of determination in their eyes.

Today's arrivals asserted that General Pershing, Colonel Dodd and the other commanders of the American advance, are taking every precaution against possible uprising of irresponsible Villa sympathizers, realizing that Chihuahua is the state in which Villa first was powerful and where the nucleus of his army was recruited. To prevent possible outbreaks against the Americans, detachments of our troops have been stationed in all places not garrisoned by Carranza, they said.

Man Who Murdered Millionaire Father-in-law Declares No One Else Was Implicated in Crime.

(BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEASED WIRE)
New York, April 5.—Dr. Arthur Warren Waite, in a talk with newspapermen at Bellevue hospital today, expressed remorse for the death of his father-in-law, John E. Peck, of Grand Rapids, Mich., whose murder he has confessed, and declared that he was ready "to pay the price."

He also said he had no accomplices in the crime.

"If any word uttered by me now could save me I would not utter it," he said. "I want to pay the price."

When asked regarding his own ideas of his sanity, he said: "Of course I am sane. There has been no thought of anything else to my mind."

No One Else to Blame.
"The whole thing revolves around me and no one else," he continued. "I don't wish to justify myself in any way. I can't justify myself. I feel perfectly at ease. I have no dread of what lies beyond. I shall go to the new world, wherever it may be, and I expect to get a fresh start. It is all clear in my mind now. My only desire is to pass on and let society forget me."

In reply to a question, Dr. Waite declared:

"I am not a bigamist. I have had only one wife."

Not Told of Divorce Suit.
The prisoner still is very weak and for that reason he has not been told that his wife has petitioned for a divorce.

"There was not any definite idea of getting a large amount of money," Waite answered in reply to a question as to whether his motive was to acquire riches. He did not explain, however, what his motive was.

Waite said there was $9,000 in the roll of bills he gave Eugene Oliver Kane, an embalmmer, in an effort to induce him to put arsenic in a sample of embalming fluid similar to that used on the body of Peck. The roll subsequently unearthed by Kane from the spot where he had hidden it on Long Island contained $7,800.

Several Bills Missing.
Detective John Coniffe, who was present, asked Waite if there were any $20 bills in the roll and Waite replied that there were several.

"That clears up the mystery," Coniffe said.

The roll Kane dug and which he said he had never counted did not contain any bills of that denomination.

Waite appeared very weak, and spoke at times with an apparent effort.

A letter found in his apartments addressed to him and signed "Your Affectionate Mother," Waite explained, came from a Mrs. Steyn, mother of the manager of two farms which he said he owned in British East Africa.

"Mrs. Steyn was very fond of me," Waite added, "and it will be a terrible shock to her when she learns of my predicament."

Waite refused to say anything further about the "man from Egypt," the evil side of a dual personality he recently told the district attorney possessed him. "Dr. Gregory knows why," he explained. Dr. Gregory is head of the psychopathic ward at Bellevue hospital.

NATIONAL GUARD LOBBY STRIVES FOR DEFEAT OF PREPAREDNESS

lyists are working for and against the water power bill, the bill for a government-owned nitrogen plant and for specific water power projects.

Chairman Chamberlain, of the military committee, said he would favor the resolution if it came before the senate in the regular way, but said he would not let it block the progress of the army bill and objected to its immediate consideration. Senator Chamberlain spoke vigorously against efforts to eliminate the federal volunteer plan.

"We do not need preparedness," he added, "if we intend to let one of the belligerents take the lives of our citizens who have the right to travel in other lands; we don't need preparedness if we intend to permit another of the belligerents to take our ships into his harbors and search them."

"When this war is over, if we intend to demand recompense for the lives and property destroyed, if we are going to demand any satisfaction, then we ought to be prepared to back all our demands by force of arms if necessary. And in what condition are we? Why, we have not the power to enforce a single demand we have made."

"We all know any proposal of any great nation for an alliance with the country south of us would be gladly received," said Senator Chamberlain. "Only this morning we read that one of the belligerents had asserted the doctrine that ships should not leave the ports of this country unless their manifests had been vised by her."

How long is the United States going to tolerate indignities like this? "Is this country now at peace with all nations?" inquired Senator Chamberlain.

"We are," replied Senator Chamberlain. "We are enjoying the peace of China now and every great nation that comes along may want to enjoy some of that peace. There is not an obligation entered into in The Hague conference that has not been violated whenever it suited the notions of any of the signers to violate. If we can believe what we read, Holland even today is about to be invaded to suit the whims and emergencies of those engaged in the war, not because of anything that Holland has done, but because one or more of the belligerents sees a way to harass her enemies through the peaceful country."

Senator Chamberlain took up the question of sustaining the Monroe doctrine.

"You all know as well as I," he declared, "that colonization has already set in on the east coast of South America. You well know or if you don't you can easily find out, that on the west coast colonization has set in by another warlike power."

"We may have to assert that doctrine again. But in order to assert it we must be prepared to maintain it with an adequate army and an adequate navy, too."

The Oregon senator denounced the efforts of national guard organizations to defeat the volunteer army provision. He said he always had been a friend of the guard, but added:

"If the national guard intends to come here politically and undertake to control legislation calculated to raise an army to protect America against the world, for one, from now on shall favor the elimination of the national guard as a military factor in this country. They have been here and are here for this purpose."

"I have been a friend of the national guard, but I cannot support its present attitude."

Senator McCumber asked for an explanation of the real purpose of national guard officers in opposing the volunteer forces. Senator Nelson said he thought he could answer the questions.

"Night before last," said Senator Nelson, "I received nine telegrams from officers of the Minnesota National guard asking me to vote against the volunteer force in this bill. I called it to the attention of the newspapers of my state and said I thought the national guard was trying to hamstring this bill. That was printed in Minnesota and today I received a telegram from the adjutant general of Minnesota, stating that he had seen in the Minnesota press statements from me severely criticizing the national guard and stating that the national guard believed the volunteer force, if adopted, would open the door to the disbanding of the national guard; that they believed the national guard could not exist as a unit if the volunteer section were adopted."

"That's the secret. The national guard opposes this section because they are jealous and are fighting it because they fear it threatens their existence. In all my experience in this body I have never seen such lobbying as these outside influences brought to bear to defeat certain sections of this bill."

Senator Chamberlain said Mr. Nelson's experiences had been similar to his own. He read a letter from Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, in which Gompers asserted it ultimately would be necessary to resort to universal military training.

Questioned by Senator Cummins, Chairman Chamberlain said he commended the right of any citizen to offer his views for or against legislation but declared it became a matter when any great body of men organized to attempt to influence law-making.

TURKISH FORCE BADLY BEATEN ON TIGRIS RIVER

(BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEASED WIRE)
London, April 5 (8:09 p. m.).—A victory for the British over the Turks on the Tigris below Kut-el-Amara has been reported by General Lake in command of the British forces there.

The Turkish entrenched position at Umm-el-Henna was attacked and carried at 5 o'clock this morning by the Tigris corps, General Lake telegraphed, and the operations are proceeding satisfactorily.

The capture of the Umm-el-Henna, which is on the Tigris about twenty miles downstream from Kut-el-Amara, is the most important news from this theater in some time and is regarded here as giving promise of the early relief of General Townshend's force, which has been besieged in Kut-el-Amara since the first week in December.

Umm-el-Henna is a strong position at an important bend of the river and is said to be the last serious barrier to the relief of General Townshend, although two or three less strong positions are still to be overcome before Kut-el-Amara is reached.

Next to the Dardanelles expedition, the operations in Mesopotamia have been a subject on which the government has been more criticized than any other not only on account of the breakdown in the hospital arrangements, but on the question of responsibility of the advance, with insufficient forces, toward Bagdad.

As in the case of the Dardanelles, the critics accused the ministers at home of insisting on the expedition against the advice of the military authorities in India and on the spot. This accusation, however, met with an unqualified contradiction by Austin Chamberlain, secretary for India, in the house of commons yesterday.

Mr. Chamberlain declared that the advance on Bagdad was undertaken on the advice of the commander-in-chief in Mesopotamia.

Umm-el-Henna is on the Tigris river, about twenty miles below Kut-el-Amara, where a British force under General Townshend is beleaguered.

BOTH LIVESTOCK MAN AND PACKER WITHOUT PROFITS

House Judiciary Committee Hears That Consumers Are Not Willing to Pay Enough for Meat They Eat.

(BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEASED WIRE)
Washington, April 5.—Despite the soaring prices of meat, neither the producer nor the packer is profiting greatly, according to testimony given today by representatives of the respective industries before the house judiciary subcommittee hearing on the Dardanelles resolution for a federal investigation of the packing industry.

Answering declarations of producers that packers are reaping enormous profits, Arthur Meeker, vice president of Armour & Co., declared that last week his firm lost approximately $50,000 on their total sales in the United States. His statement interrupted that of John Landgrin, a big cattle raiser of Amarillo, Texas, who insisted that in spite of large sales he had only "broken even" in his business the last three years.

Higher Prices Certain.
Edward L. Burke, of Omaha, representing the American National Livestock association, told the committee that higher prices were inevitable in the face of decreased cattle production.

Mr. Landgrin, who said he once made an unsuccessful attempt as a member of an independent Texas packing company to compete with the five large firms that control the bulk of the business in this country, was positive in his declarations that the packers were making much money.

Doubts Paucity of Profits.
"They tell us they are making over from sixty cents to $1.15 on each steer," he said. "Well, maybe so, but we think they have left out some thing in their calculations and something besides the liver, too. Possibly they have left out a front quarter or a hide, and because we are not satisfied with their statements and the state of affairs in which we find our business, we want an investigation."

"Do you find your business profitable?" Mr. Meeker inquired.

"We find it uncertain," Mr. Landgrin continued. "We haven't made any money in the last three years. It was a close shave last year. The year before we lost money."

Rehearsal by Mr. Landgrin of how he was forced to hold a shipment of cattle in Kansas City yards for three days on a declining market, and finally to sell at a loss of more than $14 a head, drew out Mr. Meeker's statement:

"Failure by producers to regulate shipments is one of the greatest causes of complaint against packers," he said. "Often times more cattle come to us than can be sold. The shipper seems to think that we can get rid of them somehow."

Loss of Armour & Co.
"On all the beef that Armour & Co. sold in the United States last week—I think it was about 25,000 cattle—we lost from 25 to 40 a hundred pounds. If we handled 25,000 our loss was about $50,000."

"If you lost money on beef, how is it that you have piled up a surplus of $98,000,000?" asked Judge W. H. Wallace, of Kansas City.

Mr. Meeker replied that he did not maintain that his company was operating at a general loss, but that only with the aid of proceeds from by-products it was able to show a gain.

"In my judgment," Mr. Meeker continued, "beef has not so high a price as it has been for some time. It has curtailed the consumption of meat and, therefore, we are forced to sell at a loss. We have not sold out within twenty percent of the beef we shipped last week."

"The selling price of beef last week went down six cents lower than it was the week before, and yet we had to pay more for it. We sold it as high as we could sell it. We can not force anyone to pay a certain price, of course, we try to sell at a certain figure, but buyers bid on our product the same as we bid on cattle, and we can't always get what we want for it."

Mr. Meeker said it was not fair that producers should lose money on their cattle, and declared he would welcome an investigation that would lead to a remedy if it was proved that they were operating at a loss.

R. C. McManus, counsel for Swift & Co., declared the producers and the packers could "iron out their differences in ten minutes if given an opportunity."

W. L. Fisher, attorney for the producers, insisted that a broader inquiry than the packers would agree to was demanded, and at that point the hearing adjourned. It will be continued tomorrow when packers representatives are to take the stand as witnesses.

STORY PERSISTS THAT VILLA IS BADLY WOUNDED

General Gavira Makes Public Telegram in Which It Is Asserted Bandit Is in Hiding Near Bachiniba.

(BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEASED WIRE)
El Paso, Tex., April 5.—The story that Pancho Villa is wounded and that his capture is imminent, was asserted again tonight by General Gavira, the Carranza commander at Juarez.

General Gavira made public a telegram which he said he had received from General Berfani of Madera, stating positively that the bandit had been shot and was in hiding somewhere between Bachiniba and Satevo.

Probably Wounded.
The message is confirmatory of reports from American headquarters that Villa was definitely located heading toward Satevo. While the story that he is wounded is still accepted here with considerable reserve, it is pointed out that several days have elapsed since the fugitive was reported in the neighborhood of Satevo, on his way to Parral, and that nothing has been heard since of his movements.

If Villa was in full possession of his health and traveling at his usual speed of forty or more miles a day, he should have reached and passed Parral by this time, a fact which would hardly escape being reported.

Ideal for Fugitive.
Bachiniba is located on the eastern side of the continental divide, about thirty miles from Guerrero, with which it is connected by the famous Bachiniba pass. It is through this pass that all accounts agree Villa made his way after the defeat of his followers by Colonel Dodd, near Guerrero. From Bachiniba to Satevo, the trail runs about seventy miles through a broad, well-watered and fertile valley to Satevo. On either side of the valley, however, there stretch for many miles the wildest mountain wastes in Mexico, an almost ideal country for a fugitive. To thoroughly search this district would take weeks, according to Americans who are familiar with it.

Mystery at Juarez.
There is considerable mystery still involved in the condemnation to death of the three ringleaders of the alleged plot to seize Juarez and their sudden reprieve at midnight by General Gavira. Both General Gavira and Consul Gavira have alternately described the plot as Villistas and Diazistas. As the Villistas and Diazistas, or Pelizistas, as they sometimes are called, represent opposite ends of the pole in Mexican politics, Villa being the so-called champion of the peasants and Felix Diaz representing the plutocrats, or property and clerical classes, there is a good deal of speculation in El Paso as to the details of the plot. The Mexican officials refuse to discuss the matter. The plot was supposed to have been hatched in El Paso, but the American local authorities deny any knowledge of it. Fifteen Mexicans suspected of being Villistas were arrested here today and are being held for investigation.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair as it does so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet remedy for those who desire, and after a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.
